

Raymond and Brian

Eaton County

Starting the journey with one step

It's pretty common for people to be uncomfortable in emotionally charged situations. In the role of parents who foster and adopt, Raymond and Brian are managing, dealing with, and supporting the myriad of feelings expressed by the children in their care.

As dedicated parents, they do not make attempts to change or control children's feelings, but rather focus on communicating to the child that their feelings are heard, respected and taken seriously.

Their parenting style creates a safe, supportive emotional environment that's needed for each child to learn to express their feelings in healthy ways.

Raymond and Brian show interest in the children placed in their home. They share their multiple talents and gifts to enhance the knowledge, education and skill set with each child they foster. They encourage the children in their home to be who they really are, through the expression of feelings, interests and unique qualities.
