

It's all about the mindset

Jon and Jen have been recognized as an exceptional foster parents for their ability to go above and beyond for the children placed in their home. They take time to think about appropriate ways to deal with behaviors of children who experienced trauma. They understand that the children in their care have come from different degrees of traumatic environments and they seek out information that will assist with providing the best care for the specific needs of each child.

They also seek assistance and reassurance from their caseworkers before implementing discipline and rewards. Jon and Jen do a wonderful job teaching the boys respect, responsibility for their behaviors, structure and the meaning of working together as a family and team.

Currently Jon and Jen have six boys in the home. Jon and Jen's licensing agency recognizes that the family's efforts and hard work do not go unnoticed.
